AFFAIRS AT THE OPERA HOUSES. AFTER THE FIRST NIGHT-MR. ABBEY SATISFIED

AND MR. MAPLESON CONFIDENT. In and about the Academy of Music yesterday brooded the silence of the grave as is usual on Tuesdays and Thursdays during the season. At the New Metropoliwith machinists, scene shifters and carpenters. Signor Vianese was flying hither and thither, the temporary stage-manager who has taken the enjoined Parry's place was giving minute directions not unmingled with gations to the chief " super," for it appears that " supers" on Monday night were at a discount, and in place of the ninety or so necessary for "Faust" there were 150 on hand, the majority of whom got in the way of every one with exemplary diligence. Mr. Abbey was at the Star Theatre all day, but managed to pay a brief visit to the opera house. "I am satisfied with last night's perform-

Theatre all day, but managed to pay a brief visit to the opera house. "I am satisfied with last night's performance," said he; "the hitches that occurred were inevitable at a first night, and I think that on the whole I scored a success. I really have not had time to find out about the other house." Maurice Grau expressed himself as being thoroughly satisfied and denied utterly the published statement relative to the alleged poor acoustic properties of the house. "I was all over it," said he, "and as far as I could tell it is as happy in that respect as in every other. One can hear better from some places than from others, to be sure, but that is perfectly natural."

No one seemed to know for certain who sent the anonymous present to Madame Nilsson, but the names of W. H. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Doremus were mentioned in connection with it.

Mr. Mapleson was found at the New-York Hotel, but was not disposed to be communicative. "Time will show," said he," and when I play my trump card, I think you will see that a brand-new house—in which, by the way, thoybay one can neither hear nor see—is not all that is necessary for a successful Italian opera season. I did not find any change either numerically or socially in my audience last night, and in fact I sold many more tickets than I expected."

"Sous-see What do I want with Van Zaudit I had her in my company for four years and let her go most willingly. She is a clever little girl, but has been spoilt in Paris. She made a success in "Mignon" and was then taken up by the American colony and her head was quite turned. I haven't the slightest use for her."

why did you let Mr. Aboey have bet new house day evening ?"

"Because I thought that the opening of the new house was almost a National affair and I did not want the public to be disappointed. I mean though to do my best to prevent Abbey keeping him. I shall also take Lablache, who has written to me stating her willingness to ablide by her contract with me, and Parry, whom I shall find useful."

THE DOINGS OF MR. IRVING.

Mr. Irving has been spending his first two days in New-York quietly. On Monday he drove out in the forenoon and paid a few calls in the afternoon, dining with some personal friends in the evening. Yesterday, despite the disagreeable weather, he was up and about early, and after calling on several friends in the morning he spent the afternoon superintending a rehearsal of his he spont the afternoon superintending a reaction of ans-company at the Star Theatre, where he also had a long talk with Mr. Abbey. He afterward dined with Lawrence Barrett and attended the performance of "Francesca Da Rimini," at the Star Theatre, in the evening. Mr. Irving and his company express themselves as delighted with the theatre they are to occupy during the New-York

The associations also decided that not less tuan & of a cent profit would be accepted as a compromise with The Herald. A LECTURE WITH ORIENTAL ILLUSTRA-

About 100 people looked lonesome in Steinway Hall last evening at Mr. Oscanyan's lecture on "The Women of Turkey and the Jews of the East." Mr. Oscanyan illustrated his lecture by half a men and women who assumed all sorts of fanciful costumes peculiar to the East. The lecturer was gotten up as the Ban of Creatia. He was attended by a cunnen from Thompson-st., who summoned the ladies of the harem, the packas and the martis as they were wanted. This attendant disappeared before the lecture was half over, however, and is supposed to have been bowstrung for not attending to his business better. Mr. Oscanyan made an earnest plea for the Jews, and told some interesting facts of domestic life in Turkey.

TONQUIN NEGOTIATIONS.

EFFORTS OF FRANCE AND CHINA TO AGREE. A SUMMARY OF THE YELLOW BOOK-FRENCH FORCES IN TONQUIN.

Paris, Oct. 23.-The Yellow Book has been issued. It recounts the operations of the French forces in Tonquin, and says that their position in that country has materially improved. They now can move freely to all parts of the Red River Delta, and hold all the strategic points in that territory. tan Opera House, on the contrary, the hurry, bustle and The mandarins who still resist the French authority feverish excitement of Monday seemed hardly to have ablated. Workmen were everywhere. The stage was filled and the people are regaining confidence. The and the people are regaining confidence. The Anamite troops have been disbanded and the Black Flags have retreated from their positions. The French army now only awaits reinforcements to complete the pacification of the country. The book also gives, at length, the details of the negotiations with China, which have been conducted, it says, in good temper on both sides, France firmly demanding the non-interference of China in Tonquin affairs and the withdrawal of her troops from the country, and China indicating her willingness to come to some arrangement but declining to accede to the demands of France.

A FRENCH PROPOSAL REJECTED.

The Yellow Book also states that Li Hung Chang, Prime Minister of China, assured M. Tricou, the French Commissioner, before July last that no Chinese troops had crossed the Tonquin frontier; that China had no intention of interfering with Tonquin and would not thwart the French protectorate over that country, while it reserved the question of suzerainty. The Marquis Tseng, the Chinese Ambassador, repudiated the idea of China assisting Auam, and admitted that the armed action of France in Tonquin gave no ground for a rupture of the relations between the two countries. China only insisted that M. Challemel-Lacour, French Minister of Foreign Affairs, should inform him of any arrangement that could be concluded in the Tonquin question. M. Lacour then proposed a basis of an arrangement with China, which was sent to Li Hung Chang, who replied by declaring that he had not sufficient powers to conclude negotiations, and that China could not recognize the French treaty of 1874 with Anam.

The Chinese preparations for war were then ostensibly resumed. The negotiations were continued but were abruptly broken off on July 5 by the departure from Shanghai of Li Hung Chang. In August the negotiations were again resumed. M. Challemel-Lacour assured the Marquis Tseng that France had no dreams of conquest in Anam, but contended that the French must suppress the Black Flags. The Marquis declared that the Black Flags belonged to the army of the King of Anam, and suggested that an armistice be effected to enable the Chinese Government to take into consideration what other means than force could be adopted for dispersing the Black Flags.

M. Challemel-Lacour, in behalf of France, rejected this suggestion, as it was impossible to suspend the operations then undertaken. To vindicate the French honor he avowed that it was a necessary condition, before any arrangement could be concluded, that China should expressly declare her resolve to abstain from all armed intervention in Ton-quin, not to send any troops to that country, and to recall those that were already there. The Marquis Tseng thereupon replied that this demand should be officially made in China.

THE DANGERS OF A CONFLICT. The French Minister of Foreign Affairs rejoined that such a step could not be taken before knowing how it was likely to be received. A refusal would compel France to insist upon and even to demand compliance with her proposition. The Marquis Tseng appeared to desire to enter into more serious negotiations, but a reply from Pekin (communicated by the Marquis on August 18) again stopped negowas declined by China on October 16, that Government declaring that she would accept a neutral zone only on the southern instead of upon the northern frontier of Tonquin; while, it was stated, she was also willing to make arrangements for the opening of the Red River Delta to trade.

The Yellow Book concludes as follows: "Thus China demands the whole of Northern Anam and the French evacuation thereof, allowing us only the southern provinces. There is no doubt that the arrival of the reinforcement expedition will promptly terminate the work so gallantly begun in Tonquin. France is still ready to negotiate with China in a friendly spirit, and hopes that accomplished facts may induce her to take a more just view of the matter, especially when she sees the mediate but still resolute policy of the French Governeent supported by the Chambers and the country."

PORTER GIVES HIMSELF UP.

INDICTED FOR THE MURDER OF WALSH, HE VOL-UNTARILY ENDS THE INSPECTOR'S SEARCH.

A sharp ringing of the door-bell at Inspector R. Byrnes's house, a few minutes after 10 o'clock last night, was followed by a second, which seemed to hesitate.

The second ringing brought a servant to the door. She opened it and there found a man standing, whose Derby hat was glistening with rain and whose clothing was steaming with moisture. She asked him who he wished to see, and the man replied that he wanted to have a minute's talk with the Inspector. Inspector Byrnes wa seated in his cosy little library on the first floor of his house reading the evening newspapers. When he was told that a man wished to see him he arose, and went out into the hallway. There he saw "Billy" Porter, the burgiar and the supposed assassin of Walsh, the man who, with Irving, was killed in "Shang "Draper's liquor atore iast week. The Inspector asked Forter to walk into his library. The man did so and sat down. He appeared exceedingly nervous, and deep lines, which ere not visible at his arraignment before the Coroner's Jury a few days ago, were traced across his forchead and on his cheeks. Except a wary watching of every move ment Inspector Byrnes made, Porter showed but little enxiety for what would be the unavoidable result of his unexpected call. He was absolutely alone with the man who for three days has been seeking for him in every city and town in this country.

" Well, Porter, what is it?" asked the Inspector.

"Mr. Byrnes. I've come to give myself up. (Stience.)
I read in the newspapers this morning that I had been indicted and I thought I might as well end the thing

I read in the newspapers this morning that I had been indicted and I thought I might as well and the thing right here."

Were you in the bar-room at the time of the shooting! "was the next inquiry.

"I'll tell you how it was," Porter answered. "The front door of 'Shang's 'salcon was closed and I went into the side door and struck the hallway. I hadn't got only half way through when I heard shots and met a man I didn't know running out of the bar-room toward the street. The shots startled me, and when the min passed me I turned also and ran out into the street."

"And you were not in the bar-room!"

"No, sit. I hadn't got in there yet."

It was the work of a moment to convince Porter that there was no chance to withdraw from the step he had taken. Inspector Byrnes drew on his overcont and entering a lorse-car, roule to Bleecker'st. Thence he went to Police Headquarters. He followed Porter into the Detective Office where, the man for the second time was furly office where, the man for the second time was furly-four years old and was bern in Boston; that he was thirty-four years old and was bern in Boston; that he was single and was a gas-fifter by Irade. After these entries had been made in the police records, Porter was taken into a cell which adjoins Inspector Byrnes's private office and locked up. Detective Sergeant Routan remained in the adjoining room until morning.

Inspector Byrnes expressed his surprise at Porter's sacrifice of his liberty, not only because the thing is sel-dom done by criminals, but because the evidence against him is so weighty and is liable to convict him. On Monday the Grand Jury, after examining the papers which related to the Coroner's inquest at which Porter was discharged and the evidence which has been submitted to the Grand Jury selice the mais liberation, found an indicatement against him of murder in the first degree. A bench warrant was issued on the indictment, and when inspector Byrnes visited the District-Attorney's come after the finding of the Grand Jury the warrant was man George J. Collins and Paul C. Grening. The district is strongly Republican, and the candidates are men of recognized ability. The conventions in the 1st and 1Hd Districts were adjourned.

In the Villith Assembly District, in Brooklyn, the Democrats nominated Henry M. Birkett last evening.

HONORING LORD COLERIDGE.

A RECEPTION BY THE BAR ASSOCIATION. NO SET SPEECHES-THE LORD CHIEF JUSTICE RETURNS THANKS.

The New-York City Bar Association gave a reception to Lord Coleridge last night at the rooms of the association, No. 7 West Twenty-ninth-st. Notwithstanding the bad weather there was a large attendance of members of the bar and a fair sprinkling of gentlemen distinguished in other pursuits. The reception was entirely free from ceremony and restraint, and the preparations made were of the simplest kind consistent with good taste, the object being not to make or listen to formal speeches, but to give the members of the association and other guests an opportunity to become acquainted personally with the Lord Chief Justice.

Lord Coleridge arrived at 9 o'clock, accompanied by his son, the Hon. Gilbert Coleridge, Joseph H. Choate and John E. Parsons. Lord Coleridge was conducted to the large library, where many of the gentlemen present were introduced to him. Francis N. Bangs, president of the Bar Association, performed the ceremony of introduction. For an hour and a half Lord Coleridge engaged in pleasant conversation with those who availed themselves of the opportunity of making his acquaintance.

Among those present were Judge Van Brunt, Judge Larremore, Judge Daniels, Chief-Justice Daly, Elliott F. Shepard, Judge Cullen, Presiding Justice Davis, Judge Wallace, ex-Judge Shipman, Cephas Brainerd, Artemas H. Holmes, William Allen Butler, Francis L. Stetson, Charles P. Miller, Edward Patterson, F. At half-past 10 an adjournment was made to the large hall, where a collation was served. The hall was tastefully festooned with streamers and American and English flags.
When the "inner man" had been sufficiently attended to, Lord Coleridge advanced to the head of the table and, in a voice that was full of feeling, spoke as follows: spoke as follows:

the table and, in a voice that was full of feeling, spoke as follows:

I had not intended to say anything, and I will not trouble you with a long speech, but I cannot leave this country without saying to you, the representatives of the bar of this city and this country—in the shortest and simplest words I can command—how very grateful I am for the kindness and generosity which you have bestowed upon me from the first hour of my landing in this country until now, when I am about to depart. So in in the company of what I hope I may call my profession, because, as has been mentioned again and again, the principles which we endeavor to practise are the same so far as law is concerned, and, so far as I have been able to see, what is even more important than law, the principles of high benor and morality are the same in both countries—in this company I thank you for the kindness which, for more than two months, I have received at your hands, and wish you God-speed and bid you farewell.

These words were spoken with so much feeling that most of those present showed their appreciation of them by cloquent silence rather than applanse. Some cries were made for "Bangs!" but that gentleman did not respond, and no other speeches were made.

by the Marquis on August 18) again stopped negotiations. This reply simply announced that an inquiry would be made into the alleged presence of Chinese forces in Tonquin; that such inquiry, however, might occupy a long time, and that the Chinese Government would subsequently decide whether there was good ground for recalling the troops or whether it would leave them in their then present positions. M. Lacour observed that the presence of the Chinese troops in Tonquin, whatever might be the motive, encouraged and assisted the enemies of France, and he begged M. Tseng to call the serious attention of the Government of China to the consequences and to the danger that would result from a conflict between France and China.

THE CODE QUESTION AT REST. NO FURTHER CONTEST HERE-VIEWS OF SUCCESS-FUL AND DEFEATED CANDIDATES.

It is the opinion of both parties to the recent contest in the Medical Society of the County of New-York that for a year, at least, the agitation of the code question is at an end in that body. It can now be renewed only at the meeting of the State Society. At the last meeting of the State organization, the vote to rescind the new code adopted the year before stood 99 to 105; that is, the ndvocates of the old code, who required a two-thirds majority, were in the minority. There is no doubt that the matter will be sharply contested among the members of the State Society.

Dr. Charles A. Teale, the candidate of the old code party for vice- president, was found yesterday by a TRIBUNE reporter at his home, No. 747 Fifth-ave. He said: "The next contest over this question will be in the State Medical Society. A large proportion, fully twothirds, of the physicians in the city and State of New York are in favor of upholding the National Code until it shall be enanged by the American Medical Association. They agree with us that no change should have been de without the sanction of the National organization In this city fully 700 physicians are pledged to abide by the action of the American Association, not only out of lovalty, but for the reason that the highest benefit comes to the physician by obtaining the views of prominent to the physician by obtaining the views of prominent men from all parts of the country. The American Medical Association is the largest body of physicians in this country and probably in the world. My idea from the beginning has been that if the National Code was found objectionable in any respect, the proper remedy lay in the body which enacted it, and not in the State societies which should be looked on as subordinate. If the National Code is objectionable to a few in this city, why should they attempt to deprive the physicians of the great State of New-York of a voice in the National Assembly! Why should New-York he made to seeede instead of remaining to exert her influence in behalf of reform, if reform is necessary! My belief is that the movement to modify the code has been the work of not more than five discontented and turbulent men who destred to destroy the American Medical Association. They are men whose records clearly prove that they can not keep in harmony with any organization unless they have absolute power. The advocates of the changed code have said in a circular they published recently that 'the American Medical Association is an unchartered and right of the American Medical Association to exist and to legislate for physicians is as manifest as that of the Episcopal or Roman Catholic Church. Both these bodies are unchartered. New-York is now the only State not represented in the Naticasl body. The societies of all the other States are against us. Whether we shall be able to vote our full strength at the State Society I can not say, but if we do, there is no question but that we shall have the requisite two-thirds majority to resclad to the county Society on Monday night, was found at his home, No. 36 West Thirty-minth-st. He was confident linal a progressive movement, as this was, mainly carried on by the young aren of the profession, must grow. "The contest cannot well be renewed. The demonstration in the State Society moves slowly. It is delerates are refeted for four years and the permanent men from all parts of the country. The American Med-ical Association is the largest body of physicians in this

THE WAR AGAINST BUTLER.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST FRAUD.

SEVEN HUNDRED MEN TO GUARD THE BOSTON POLLS ON ELECTION DAY.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.]

Boston, Oct. 23 .- The Republican leaders, seeing that the purpose of the Mayor in an appointment of election officers was to so fix the election machinery in Boston that Butler would be returned even if by fraud, determined to take decided action. In response to an invitation from the Republican City Committee, about 500 prominent Republicans met in the "Meionaon" this afternoon. Ex-Governor Riche presided, and in an excellent speech stated the object of the meeting which, briefly stated, was the appointment of a vigilance committee, whose duty should be to guard the polls on election day from the entrance of fraud through the door opened by the Mayor. Speeches were also made by George D. Robinson, the Republican candidate for Governor, Colonel Codman, Parker C. Chandler and Henry Cabot Lodge.

Not for many years has there been witnessed in the city

Not for many years has there been witnessed in the city of Boston, at a gathering of staid, sober citizens, such an outburst of enthusiasm as accompanied the brief speech of Mr. Robinson. The audience not only applanded vigorously, but two or three times by a common impulse they arose and gave their candidate three rousing cheers, flinging their hats in the air. It was in all respects a remarkable gathering, and one which promises to have a salutary effect on the election. As a result of the meeting 700 reputable gentlemen, many of them heavy business men, have pledged themselves to visit the 107 pelling places in Boston, on the 6th of November, and guard the ballot box from fraud. Persons of doubtful character will be challenged and all possible precautions taken to prevent fraud.

OPPOSITION FROM DEMOCRATS.

LESS DANGEROUS AS AN ENEMY THAN AS A PRE-TENDED FRIEND.

Boston, Oct 23 .-- An address will be issued to-morrow by the "Old Line Democrats." It is signed by fifty-two well-known gentlemen who have been and are prominently connected with the Democracy of the State, the names of J. Q. Adams, Leverett Saltonstall, Richard Olney, Clinton Viles, Francis W. Bird, George M. Stearns and N. S. Shaler leading the The address is in part as follows: "As Democrats who wish to be consistent, we appeal to your patriotism and sober common sense to oppose the re-election of Benjamin F. Butler. During all hi notoriety as a Republican politician after his desertion of the Democratic party, he was chiefly conspicuous in pressing measures the most odious to constitutional Democracy and urging every most offensively partisan policy. His open hostility, however, is harmless compared with his pretended friendship. Caring narmiess compared with mis pretended friendship. Caring nothing for party or principle, he subordinates every public interest to his own aggrandizement. Should he be again elected, the Democratic party of Massachusetts would be held responsible for his administrative acts and eccentricities. We cannot hesitate to declare that we included to do all that may be in our power to secure the defeat of General Eutler, and we urge all Democrats to Join with us in such action."

DECLINES TO SHARE DEFEAT WITH HIM. MR. ABBOTT WILL NOT ACCEPT THE NOMINATION.

Boston, Oct. 23 .- The Herald to-morrow will say: "It was announced at a late hour yesterday after oon on the best, but not official, authority, that S. A. B. Abbott, who was nominated on Saturday to second place on the Democratic State ticket, declines to stand. Abbott is in Washington, but he informed a friend that he had declined, and further said that he had no sympathy with Butler."

THE DIVIDED BUFFALO DEMOCRACY, ONE CONVENTION IDEAD YESTERDAY AND ANOTHER

TO BE HELD TO-DAY. [BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.]

BUFFALO, Oct. 23 .- The fight in the local Democratic ranks waxes exceedingly hot. Since the grand split of last Wednesday night both sides have displayed much activity, and left no stone unturned that uld possibly benefit their respective candidates. Mr. Manning, the present incumbent, is more than anxious to be returned to the Mayoralty. He worked for years for the office, and now that he has had a taste wants another. His opponent, Jonathan Scoville, is known as "the man with a bar't." The Scoville men called a convention for this afternoon, while the Manning crowd issued a call for to-morrow.

At 2 o'clock Schwable's Hall, in Broadway, was crowded. Ira Betts, of the City Committee, called the convention to order, and after the Committee on Contested Seats had finished their work business was begun in a arnest. William H. Abel, of the Xth Ward, in e arnest. Within R. Adv.

nominated Jonathan Scoville for Mayor. The nomination was promptly seconded, and Mr. Scoville was nominated by acclamation. Then the convention proceeded to nominate J. Mahoney for Controller, Herman Henning for City Attorney, Colonel Richard Flack for City Treaswas promply seconds and the convention proceeded to nominate J. Mahoney for Controller, Herman Henning for City Attorney, Colonel Richard Flack for City Treasurer, J. Rosers for City Engineer, and James F. Crocker for Superintendent of Education. At 3:30 o'clock Mr. Scoville appeared on the platform. Tremendous enthuslasm ensued. He thanked the delegates, who, he said Mr. Sowille appeared on the interest the transfer that shann ensued. He thanked the delegates, who, he said represented fifty per cent of the Democratic party. He claimed that when a Mayor need his office for personal ends he became a vulgar politician. Mr. Scoville concluded by styling he would be a Mayor for the people and not for any faction or clique.

When the result of the convention was made known to Mayor Manning, he said it would not influence his course of action. While he appreciated the circumstances attending the unhappy condition of things in the Democratic party in Buffalo, he was not responsible for it. Lively times are expected between now and election.

THE SPORY OF HIS ADVENTURES TOLD BY A YOUNG MAN IN PORTLAND.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 23 .- The Argus to-morrow will publish an article to the effect that there is at present a young man in this city who claims to be Charlie Ross. He believes himself to be about eighteen years of age. In appearance he is tall and slim, with a good-looking face, dark brown hair with a slight tendency to curl, fine forehead, well-arched eyebrows and intelligent-looking eyes. He came here from Boston four weeks ago. It is his intention to save money enough to take him to Philadelphia, where he will

He was allowed, under close surveillance, to leave the room occasionally. He was not abused by his captors. There were other children in the house, but these he rarely saw, and was not permitted to play with. After remaining at Winterport for several years he was carried on a vessel to Brazil. It was on this voyage that he learned that he was stollen by Jessen James, the Davidsons and Pinkham. After reaching Brazil he managed to clude his captors and returned to this country, working his passage on a ship. Since then he has been to see, most of the time serving as cook. He can read only a little and does not write at all. He proposes, in case he stays here the coming winter, to go to evening school and obtain an education.

M. Bernard was born at Mort Brison, Department of the Loire, on September 17, 1808. After the accession of Louis Philippe he entered the Republican party and affiliated with the Society of the Rights of Man. He united himself with MM. He took a part in the insurrection of May 12, 1839, and appeared before the Court of Paris, but refused to recogniz it and was condemned to transportation. After the February revolution the Provisional Government brought him back to Parts, giving him the title of Commissary-General in four departments, where his efforts and those of M. E. Baune prevented the outbreak of a civil war. He was made a representative of the Department of the Loire, became a member of the Committee of the Interior and voted steadily with La Montague on social and political questions.
